

Tshokolo Petrus Nchocho

CEO at Land Bank

Mr Tshokolo Petrus Nchocho (TP) is the Chief Executive Officer for the Land and Agricultural Development Bank (“Land Bank”) since February 2015. He has over 20 years’ experience in the economic development finance and banking arena.

Prior to joining Land Bank, he was Group Executive: South Africa Operations at DBSA, where he managed a portfolio comprising of infrastructure project finance debt and equity investments. Previously served in various capacities in business banking and development finance.

TP has the following academic qualifications:

- BCom (University of the North)
- Master of Business Leadership (MBL) (UNISA School of Business)
- MSc Finance (University of London-UK), and
- Advanced Management Program (AMP), Harvard University.

His passion for socio-economic development saw him serving as a board member for several community-based organisations, amongst others the Youth Enterprise Society (“YES”), an NGO based in Harrismith, Free State where he volunteered Business Advisory services to young entrepreneurs. He also served on the board of Yeast Housing Company, an inner city housing section 21 company operating in central Pretoria/Tshwane.